

THE AUSTRALIAN WOMEN DONORS NETWORK

The Australian Women Donors Network is a growing community of women and men who understand that investing in women and girls strengthens both economies and society as a whole. The Network does not raise funds nor give grants. We are part of a burgeoning global movement spreading awareness, not only of the benefits in addressing the disadvantages still experienced by women and girls, but of their central role in effecting constructive social change and development.

WHY IS GENDER IMPORTANT IN PHILANTHROPY?

Effective philanthropy understands that the needs of women and men are different and that in order to treat them equally, their distinct circumstances must be addressed. When philanthropists give, they mostly support mainstream projects that may not differentiate by gender. They often assume that giving to 'youth', 'medical research' or the 'arts' benefits the sexes equally, but sometimes it does not. Often women and girls are overlooked because they lack the power, visibility or opportunity to voice their needs or opinions. As a result, mainstream projects become less effective and philanthropic impact is lessened. To learn more on this, visit 'Gender Matters' on our website or download our Guide to Gender-wise Philanthropy.

Gender equality has got to be front and centre of our plan for the nation's economic and social security. ”

ONLINE PROJECT SHOWCASE

Women Donors offers an Online Project Showcase that has been designed to help organisations display their projects to the funding community. Individual donors, trusts or foundations (private or corporate) can browse projects via a number of focus areas, geographic locations or target groups. We look forward to this leading to more philanthropic funding for women and girls. Check it out on our website www.womendonors.org.au
